Executive summary

The five oversight and advocacy bodies under the Children and Young People \(Oversight and Advocacy Bodies\) Act 2016 have unique roles of oversight and advocacy, which collectively serve to proactively consider the rights, development and wellbeing of South Australia's children and young people (birth to 18 years).

The Child Development Council and the Commissioner for Children and Young People have a responsibility to all children and young people in South Australia¹ (ss 55 and 14(1)(a) respectively). Through its key function to develop and maintain South Australia's Outcomes Framework for Children and Young People, including the Charter for Children and Young People, the Council also has a specific requirement in connection with improving outcomes for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children and young people (regulation 12(2)(d)).²

The framework is an overarching point of reference to guide all State authorities to work individually and collectively to improve outcomes for children and young people. Reporting under the framework informs³ a whole-of-government approach to funding, objectives, developing and implementing strategies, policies and services, and meets the requirement that the framework will 'be instrumental in guiding the Government's work for children and young people across South Australia'.

In 2021, there were 372,300 children and young people under 18 years living in South Australia (including 18,200 Aboriginal children and young people). The introduction to this report includes a table of disaggregated information by age groups and snapshot infographics for geographic location, socioeconomic status, disability and out-of-home care.

¹ In carrying out their functions for all children and young people (birth to 18 years), the Council and the Commissioner must both engage children and young people (ss 57(4)(c) and 14(2), respectively). The Council has a further obligation to engage their parents, carers and families (s 57(4)(c)).

² The Council's statutory requirements state it must engage children and young people (ss57(4)(c); 14(2)) and their parents, carers and families (s57(4)(c)). There is, additionally, a specific requirement to improve outcomes for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander children (reg 12(2)(d)).

³ South Australia, Parliamentary Debates, Legislative Council, 20 September 2016 (The Hon. P. Malinauskas, Minister for Police, Minister for Correctional Services, Minister for Emergency Services, Minister for Road Safety).

The Council's 2021-22 annual report reflects on activities to fulfil its legislative functions during 2021-2022. These activities included:

- Reporting outcomes under South Australia's framework:
 - How are they faring? South Australia's 2021 Report Card for children and young people – the 2021 report card indicated that most young South Australians are faring well; however, national comparison indicates that, proportionally, more children and young people in South Australia live in the most disadvantaged socio-economic circumstances
 - The hidden cost of young South Australians shaping up for an unhealthy future - this policy brief highlighted the serious, long-term impacts of obesity and a lack of data for targeted, evidence-based interventions
- Reviewing South Australia's framework:
 - On 1 February 2022, launching the first review of the framework that was gazetted on 14 November 2019; the legislation requires review at least once in every three-year period
 - Commencing targeted consultation with key community stakeholders, especially Aboriginal people to inform the review
- Charter Ambassador Program launch:
 - Charter Patron, Her Excellency the Honourable Frances Adamson AC, Governor of South Australia, hosted a reception at Government House on 10 May 2022 to launch the Charter Ambassador Program.

This annual report briefly reflects on the inspirational leadership of Dr Anne Glover AO, inaugural Presiding Member. Details are also provided of Council membership changes, operation, stakeholder communication and engagement, and other initiatives for the 2021-22 reporting period.

Introduction

The Child Development Council (Council) is established in the Children and Young People \(Oversight and Advocacy Bodies\) Act 2016 (Act) to:

- develop and maintain South Australia's Outcomes Framework for Children and Young People (framework) including a Charter for Children and Young People
- promote the implementation of the framework by State authorities⁴
- report to the Government of South Australia on how effective the framework is in improving the outcomes of children and young people (birth to 18 years).

Having a legislated framework reflects the South Australian Government's commitment to improving outcomes for children and young people in five dimensions: health, safety, wellbeing, education and citizenship.

Reporting the data under the framework informs a whole-of-government approach to funding, objectives and developing and implementing strategies, policies and services.

South Australia's children and young people at a glance

In 2021, South Australia had 372,300 children and young people under 18 years⁵, including 18,200 Aboriginal children and young people⁶, as depicted in Table 1.

Table 1 Number of children and young people estimated to be living in South Australia.

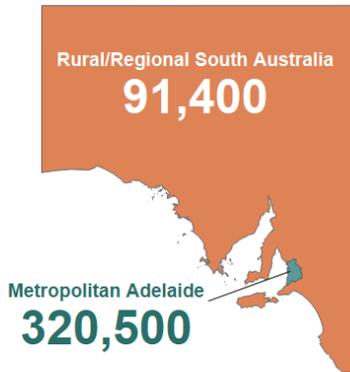

Age Range	Total	Proportion
Birth to 17 years (<18 years)	372,300	100%
Birth-5 years (inc)	118,400	31.8%
6-11 years (inc)	128,200	34.4%
12-17 years (inc)	125,700	33.8%

⁴ State authorities are defined in the Act to include statutory officials, public sector agencies, the South Australia Police, local government ie, councils, incorporated or unincorporated bodies established for a public purpose by/under an Act (other than incorporated companies, associations, cooperatives, societies or other voluntary organisations) and established or subject to control or direction by the Government a Minister of the Crown or a local council (whether or not established under an Act) and any other person or body declared by the regulations to be a State authority.

South Australia's 2021 Report Card

How are they faring? South Australia's 2021 Report Card for children and young people ('SA's 2021 Report Card' or 'report card') was published on 23 December 2021. This second report card of population-level outcomes under the framework's five dimensions of health, safety, wellbeing, education and citizenship showed that, overall, children and young people under 18 years continue to fare well; however, while most young South Australians appear to be thriving, too many continue to face substantial challenges.

Some of the issues of concern highlighted by SA's 2021 Report Card included:

- the second highest rate of all states and territories for children and young people in out-of-home care at 30 June 2020
- the second highest rate of all states and territories for Aboriginal children and young people entering out-of-home care during 2019-2020
- the rates of Aboriginal Year 5 students meeting the national minimum standards in literacy and numeracy were much lower than the national rates in 2019⁷
- proportionally more children and young people lived in the most disadvantaged socio-economic circumstances in 2020, when compared to the national rate.

Data are fundamental for a common basis across government for creating strategies, setting objectives and for developing and implementing policies.

Addressing data gaps and data quality was identified as the key priority for 2022.

SA's 2021 Report Card urged State authorities and data custodians to carefully consider and address data gaps, data lags and data quality to improve reporting of outcomes for children and young people.

Outcomes at a glance, an A3 visual summary placemat of SA's 2021 Report Card was published in an accessible format in early 2022.

⁷ A decision was made by the relevant Minister to cancel NAPLAN in 2020 due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Policy brief #2: The hidden cost of young South Australians shaping up for an unhealthy future

This second policy brief published on 20 October 2021 highlighted that South Australia does not have an adequate monitoring mechanism to track the prevalence and incidence of overweight and obesity from early childhood and provide the data needed to develop appropriately targeted evidence-based programs.

South Australia's overweight and obesity prevalence rates for children and young people (2-17 years) are estimated from Australia's triennial National Health Survey conducted by the Australian Bureau of Statistics. Because these data are not captured annually, a significant measurement gap exists.

Wellbeing SA conducts a state-wide population health survey that monitors the nutrition and activity patterns of children and young people through a telephone survey. Whilst these data are useful for tracking broad population trends, they are insufficient to accurately measure any regional/group patterns of growth/weight in children and young people. These data are also inadequate to evaluate the impact of specific prevention or intervention strategies. Regular, objectively measured growth and eating patterns of children and young people are needed.

Altering a life-long trajectory of weight related health problems for individuals and a cost burden for the state requires robust data to build prevention and intervention strategies. Better outcomes are achieved when prevention occurs early in life. It is also more cost-effective. It is crucial to:

- collect improved data using random samples and objective physical measurements to inform evidence-based prevention and intervention strategies
- tailor data collection to provide longitudinal insights for the same group of children and young people from birth to adulthood, rather than unrelated snapshots of data taken periodically in childhood and again in adolescence.

Framework review and targeted community consultation

On 1 February 2022, the Council launched the open consultation for the inaugural review of the framework. Mr Phillip Allen, Council member, Chair of the Council's Aboriginal Reference Group, artist and musician, generously created and donated original artwork for the bespoke consultation materials which included an animated video, an online survey, a hard copy feedback form and a postcard. The Council acknowledges Mr Allen's contribution.

The Council had submitted a business case to facilitate targeted consultation with key community stakeholders, especially Aboriginal people on 9 November 2021. Six months later, on 5 April 2022, the Council signed a Memorandum of Administrative Arrangement with the Department for Education for a Community Consultation Policy Officer. Ms Juliana Chambers commenced in this position on 21 April 2022.

Open consultation for the review closed on 30 June 2022 with 33 online surveys completed and 12 submissions received. The targeted community consultation until 31 August 2022 will include two youth consultations, one in Whyalla at Plaza Youth on 21 July and one in metropolitan Adelaide. Other targeted consultation will include:

- Port Lincoln Community stakeholders – 19 July
- Port Augusta stakeholder consultation – 22 July and 3-4 August
- Women's and Children's Health Network – 26 July
- Adelaide Community Stakeholder consultation – 27 July
- Commissioner for Aboriginal Engagement – 28 July
- Regional Anangu Services Aboriginal Corporation, Community Programs Team – 1 August
- Yalata – 9-11 August

Charter Ambassador Program

Charter Patron, Her Excellency the Honourable Frances Adamson AC, Governor of South Australia, hosted a reception at Government House on 10 May 2022 to formally launch the Charter Ambassador Program (CAP).

The CAP aims to 'give life' to the Charter for Children and Young People (Charter) which consists of 20 conditions that all children and young people in South Australia can, and should, have for a good life now and opportunities in the future.

The CAP is open to all children and young people of school age in South Australia; communication with Charter Ambassadors at schools is through Charter Facilitators (ie, teachers or wellbeing coordinators).

Through the CAP, the Charter Ambassadors are developing a better understanding of personal agency and the role children and young people can play in shaping the future. The CAP aims to grow a sense of connectedness with community and peers.

Workshops and forums during the year aim to equip the Charter Ambassadors to share information about the Charter eg at school and in the community.

Three inspirational South Australians have accepted invitations to be CAP Sponsors; Mr Bruce Djite (Chief Executive Officer, Committee for Adelaide and Deputy Chair, West Beach Trust), Ms Felicity Graham (author of Not Held Down and an advocate through her company Fostering Change Australia) and Mr Matt Cowdrey OAM MP, Shadow Treasurer of South Australia.

Preparations are underway for a CAP event at Parliament House on 16 August 2022 with the Hon Blair Boyer MP, Minister for Education, Training and Skills (Minister) and two other elected members of Parliament. The Minister will lead a question-and-answer session with CAP Ambassadors regarding topics such as decision making and change, citizenship and influence, and leadership and advocacy.

Submissions, advocacy, and advice

South Australia's Road Safety Strategy to 2031

On 31 August 2021, the Council noted and endorsed, in principle, the 10-year targets to 2031 of at least 50% reduction in lives lost and a 30% reduction in serious injuries (per capita).

The Council endorsed the short submission prepared by the Child Death and Serious Injury Review Committee (CDSIRC) on behalf of the oversight and advocacy bodies. The Council submitted additional observations for consideration that included:

- 39 children and young people (birth to 12 years) died in South Australia as a result of a motor vehicle accident (MVA) in a 15-year period since 2005:
 - 24 of these deaths were associated with use of inappropriate restraints
 - nine deaths were of children or young people who had not been restrained at all
 - some of these deaths could have been prevented by the use of appropriate restraints.

National Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Early Childhood Strategy

On 31 August 2021, the Council recognised and acknowledged the considerable effort invested in producing the draft strategy and supported the strategy.

National Obesity Strategy

The Council made a short submission as part of the consultation for the National Obesity Strategy on 26 October 2021 and asked for policy brief: The hidden cost of young South Australians shaping up for an unhealthy future to be taken into consideration.

Children and Young People (Oversight and Advocacy Bodies) (Commissioner for Aboriginal Children and Young People) Amendment Bill 2020

At the invitation of the Hon John Gardner MP, Minister for Education, the Council made a submission to the Minister regarding the (then) Member for Reynell's proposed amendments to this amendment bill at the beginning of the reporting period.

This bill to establish the Commissioner for Aboriginal Children and Young People in the Children and Young People (Oversight and Advocacy Bodies) Act 2016, was subsequently passed by Parliament and assented to by Her Excellency the Governor on 30 September 2021.

Children and Young People (Oversight and Advocacy Bodies) (Commissioner for Aboriginal Children and Young People) Variation Regulations

The Governor of South Australia assented to the Children and Young People (Oversight and Advocacy Bodies) (Commissioner for Aboriginal Children and Young People) Amendment Bill on 12 October 2021.

On 26 October 2021, by invitation, the Council reviewed and commented on the Children and Young People (Oversight and Advocacy Bodies) (Commissioner for Aboriginal Children and Young People) Variation Regulations 2021 (Variation Regulations). The Council indicated there were no particular concerns regarding the Variation Regulations.

Collaboration

Oversight and advocacy bodies

In 2019-20, the Council initiated collaborative discussions to consider how the oversight and advocacy bodies can better support each other's work and maximise collective impact for children and young people in South Australia.

The Council has continued to facilitate connection of this group that comprises the Commissioner for Children and Young People (CCYP), Commissioner for Aboriginal Children and Young People (CACYP), Guardian for Children and Young People (GCYP), CDSIRC and the Council.

In 2021, these five oversight and advocacy bodies met on 26 July and 9 November. In 2022, they met on 15 March 2022 and will meet again on 19 July 2022.

On 14 December 2021, Dr Glover and Mr Jaeschke met with Mr Clinton Jury, newly appointed Chief Executive Officer of the Local Government Association (LGA) and Mayor Angela Evans, LGA President. This was the first high-level meeting of the Council and the LGA to raise awareness at leadership level of the statutory duty of local government to have regard to and seek to give effect to the framework.

Following the March 2022 South Australian Election, in April 2022, the Council wrote to all new and ongoing state government department chief executives, Mr Jury and Mayor Evans of the LGA, TAFE SA and the Education Standards Board (ESB) with copies of SA's 2021 Report Card. Secretariat

The Council is funded for a small secretariat of only 2.8 FTE which constrains the Council's ability to fulfil its statutory functions in connection with the whole-of-state, whole-of-government legislated framework. In 2021-22, the Council's staffing constraints were compounded by staff turnover and prolonged absences.

In 2021-22, the Council obtained approval to convert goods and services funding to recruit a short-term, part-time (ASO5, 0.5 FTE) Engagement and Communications Officer to connect with local government staff and with children and young people. The position was vacant from 22 July 2021. Ms Lucy Russell Byrne held this position for six months from 2 November 2021 to May 2022 and led the work of establishing the Charter Ambassador Program.

Mr Adrian Ong, Senior Statistician, commenced in the secretariat on 8 June 2021, and the Council has benefited significantly from his expertise and proactive innovation during the reporting period. Following a review of data processing workflows, Mr Ong implemented a new procedure which uses programmable data scripts to automate workflow so that data extraction and transformation processes can be easily replicated and repeated for each reporting cycle.

Since the inaugural framework was gazetted and took effect in November 2019, the Council has published two report cards that show how children and young people under 18 years are faring in terms of their health, safety, wellbeing, education and preparedness for adulthood at a population-level.

Having also evaluated the data processes for the Council's reporting, Mr Ong developed an approach where data can be extracted, cleansed and transformed more accurately and efficiently before being fed into Council publications.

This new data design ensures that historical data remains appropriately referenced and archived, and future data can be collated in a more timely and accurate fashion.

The key streamlining steps undertaken include:

- Serialising and cataloguing the framework measures. Each measure now has its own dedicated space to store the original datasets (historical and most recent) as well as a definition
- Data scripts to automate data extraction and preparation processes including for the process of extracting web-based data tables
- Organising cleansed and transformed data through data scripts before piping the data into publications such as the report card under the framework and a newly developed data reporting tool.

These automated data workflows reduce errors associated with manual data entry and is efficient and cost effective. Using programmable data scripts means data extraction and transformation processes can be repeated and replicated with ease.

He has largely been involved in working with Aboriginal families and in particular, the young people in those families. Phil has for many years, across a range of positions, endeavoured to re-introduce 'culture' back into young people's lives; history has depleted that knowledge, and in recent years he has brought to the 21st century the ancient ideas of 'sitting and doing your learning' through the use of all the arts. This method of learning is ancient, did work and does work. For Phil it is a natural fit as he is a semi-professional musician and artist and so combining his knowledge in these areas adding to his cultural knowledge, has resulted in outstanding outcomes.
